

GUIDELINES ON ETHICAL ENGAGEMENT WITH FOR-PROFIT ENTERPRISES

1. Overview

Eradicating poverty requires commitment and resources of government, civil society and business. Business undeniably has an impact on both local and global communities, and multi-national for-profit enterprises can have significant influence in global debates of relevant to AOP's mission.

For-profit enterprises can provide valuable financial support for AOP's global activities, contribute advice and technical expertise to the organisation, and act as program partners. Based on over 50 years of international development experience, AOP can provide advice and expertise to for-profit enterprises on how they can improve their business practices for the benefit of their employees, local communities and, ultimately, their shareholders.

AOP's engagement with the for-profit sector may include:

- Receiving donations from corporates or their trusts/foundations
- Workplace giving programs, including matched giving
- Advising on Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)
- Fee-for-service or consultancy arrangements
- Cause-related marketing
- Contributions in-kind
- Licencing
- Marketing
- Event sponsorship

At times, AOP may advocate for improvements in corporate practice with individual companies or industries to address inequities in the developing world.

AOP's policy is to only enter into corporate partnerships with the end goal of building a world where all people live in dignity and security. AOP will partner with for-profit enterprises concerned about the impact of their business on local communities, as well as those for-profit enterprises that demonstrate openness to changing potentially harmful business practices or improving the overall social impact of their operations. We will develop partnerships which allow us to achieve our mission while also protecting the quality of our work in the field.
